

GEORGIA CHAPTER SLA
ANNUAL BUSINESS MEETING
Tuesday, May 3, 2005

Supporting the KM Environment:
The Roles, Responsibilities and Rights of Information Professionals

Sue Henczel examines the components of knowledge management and how they interrelate to form the knowledge management environment. She looks at the relationship between information management and knowledge management and identifies the roles information professionals can play in the knowledge management environment and the competencies they must have to contribute to and support the knowledge management processes.

Sue Henczel is Training & Consortia Manager at CAVAL Collaborative Solutions, an academic library cooperative in Melbourne, Australia. She has over 25 years experience in the information industry in academic, state reference, government, public and corporate libraries and is the author of The Information Audit: A Practical Guide (Saur, 2001). Sue is also President of the newly chartered Australia and New Zealand Chapter of SLA.
