

SLA Wisconsin Chapter – November 2009 Program Announcement
What's in a Name? and Other Association Questions
Delafield, WI

The last few months have been very exciting for the association that we all know and love. After celebrating the hundredth anniversary of SLA in Washington, DC, the leadership has released the findings from the Alignment Project. The research provides insights on how the profession and Association can move forward into the next century of prosperity.

The Wisconsin Chapter is incredibly fortunate to have Janice LaChance, CEO of SLA, join us to discuss the critical and somewhat hot-button issues associated with the Alignment Project. The online discussion forums have been buzzing with discussions about the name change to the Association of Strategic Knowledge Professionals and the impending vote in mid-November. This is your chance to hear what Janice has to say about the direction of the Association, as well as engage in what is sure to be lively conversation with your colleagues in the chapter.

Carpooling

In an effort to be more green, we would like to encourage people to carpool. Would you like to volunteer to drive? Or better yet, do you need a ride? Send an e-mail to Kyle Naff at kyle.sla@gmail.com with your contact info and a proposed meeting place of your choice as driver by 14 October. This will get forwarded to the membership, and people can contact you if they are interested. The Chapter wants to facilitate and encourage carpooling, but responsibility for all details are up to the individuals to work out. Thank you for helping make us more green!
